It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

State Board of Tax Commissioners.

ALBANY, April 15, 1897.

REPORT.

To the Honorable the Legislature of the State of New York:

The present Board of Tax Commissioners, under the provisions of the Revised Tax Law of 1896, which became operative in June last, succeeded to the powers and duties, somewhat enlarged, of the former Board of State Assessors.

The alterations made in the revised law are directed more especially to the better enforcement of its provisions than to any radical change in substance, and in accordance with such manifest purpose we have directed our efforts during the first year of our incumbency to a furtherance of that end.

In conformity with the requirements of the statute, we have visited during the past year the counties of Allegany, Albany, Broome, Cayuga, Chautauqua, Chemung, Columbia, Cortland, Erie, Genesee, Herkimer, Jefferson, Kings, Madison, Monroe, New York, Niagara, Onondaga, Ontario, Orange, Orleans, Oswego, Putnam, Saratoga, Seneca, St. Lawrence, Tioga, Tompkins, Wayne, Westchester, Wyoming and Yates, for the purpose of obtaining such information relative to the actual value of real property in the counties as would enable us to present to our associates in the State Board of Equalization, tables which would effect an equitable distribution of the State taxes. We are not confident that entire success has been attained in reaching this result, or that the State equalization does not bear too heavily on some of the counties, but equity has been the only end in view and pursued to the best of our ability with the facilities at our command.

The personnel of the local boards of assessors in the various towns of the State is changed each year at the annual town election, generally held in the month of March, and their assessments, so far as it relates to the ascertainment of property to be assessed, are required by statute to be completed by the 1st of July following. In order, therefore, to make such investigation of local methods of assessment and to give such instructions as are required to the assessors who are to make such assessments and within the time in which they are to be made, it is necessary to make these visits to half the counties of the State after the newly-elected assessors shall have entered upon the duties of their office and before the 1st day of July following. The inadequacy of the information obtainable in a meeting of a few hours with officials of each county, upon which to base a reliable estimate of the actual percentage of assessment to real value, is apparent, but with the added facilities which the new law has given to the State Board of Tax Commissioners we hope hereafter to supplement the data obtained on these visits with such facts secured from other reliable sources as shall enable us to more accurately and fairly establish the desired result.

In common with our predecessors in office, as we gather from careful examination of their reports, our most serious difficulties in carrying out the duties imposed upon us by law arise from the failure of local assessors to assess property at its full value, and more particularly the failure to discover and assess personal property.

In 1874 the Board of State Assessors, in its report to the Legislature in that year, said:

“From our examinations we are satisfied that less than 15 per cent. of the personal property of the State liable to taxation finds a place on the rolls of the assessor. * * * The amount of personal property assessed in some of the counties is less than the banking capital, and the same is true of thirty towns and cities, among which are some of the most prosperous in the State."

The Board of 1880, in its annual report of that year, makes this statement:

"It seems, however, to be patent to every one who has given any attention to this matter of the assessment of personal property, that the present practice is a farce and should no longer be tolerated. The law should be changed so as to make it pay more or it should all be exempted, but we do not wish to be understood as assenting to the last proposition."

The State Assessors of 1892, in their annual report, use this language:

"Laws for the assessment of personal property have failed to do their work, and the failure becomes more complete and more unjust with every successive year."

In 1870 the assessment of personal property was 22 per cent. of the total assessment of all taxable property in the State. In 1896 it was 12.4 per cent. One of the most glaring instances of dropping personal property from the roll is cited in the report of counsel to revise tax laws, to the Legislature of 1893, where it is said that in the city of Brooklyn within the preceding year, one and one-half millions of dollars of personal property had been dropped from the assessment-rolls, and at that time the personal property in that city paid only 4 per cent. of the tax levied. Counsel making the report added:

"This is so manifestly unfair to those persons who contribute by taxes to the support of the government that it ought not to be tolerated for a moment, and if no method can be devised by which all personal property may be fairly reached and assessed at its full value, the system should be abandoned."

The same report calls attention to the fact that, "This inequality of taxation between real and personal property had then been a crying evil for many years, and that as time goes on it seems to have increased rather than diminished," and the conclusion is stated that, "Either substantially all personal property must be reached and subjected to assessment or personal property should be entirely exempted."

These views accord with the result of our own experience and observation.

In this connection we desire to express our concurrence with one form of remedy suggested in the same report as follows:

"We are constrained to believe that the most fruitful source of difficulty in the assessment of personal property is the present provision of the statute allowing a deduction of indebtedness by the owner of personal property assessed."

In speaking of the difficulties of assessment of personal property, the State Assessors, in their report to the Legislature in 1882, said:

"The one great obstacle to such an assessment is the allowance of the deduction for debts, and we are compelled again to call attention to the fact that this allowance is the cause of far more inequality and oppression than it remedies, and that no great improvement in the system of our taxation is possible until it is abolished or essentially modified."

In the previous year the same Board used this language:

"The allowance of deduction for debts is the chief obstacle to the assessment of personal property, and we believe that the only effective remedy that can be applied is to assess personal property as real property is now assessed, without deduction for debts."

The report of the State Assessors in 1892, heretofore quoted, upon the same subject says:

“The abolition of the right to deduct debts from the value of personal property is a simple remedy for a great part of the failure of our tax system, and enactments of this character have been introduced in former Legislatures and have been sustained by the concurrent opinions of the Comptroller and other financial officers of the State, and by a strong array of public sentiment. No substantial argument can be presented against this enactment. * * * There is no remedy but in the entire abolition of the law allowing exemption for debts. There is no other way to place real and personal property on an equal footing. From the first this rule has been applied to real estate, and the Legislatures have refused to change it, fully realizing the importance of retaining a reliable and trustworthy basis of taxation without serious impairment if indebtedness was deducted. * * * Every argument against applying an exemption to real estate applies with equal force to personal property.”

This unjust and inequitable discrimination in favor of personal property is meeting with increased opposition and remonstrance, especially in the agricultural counties, as the burden upon real estate is becoming more oppressive with the continual depreciation in the value of farm lands.

We have found a prevailing opinion among the residents of cities that the percentage of assessment of real estate, to actual value, is higher in the various cities of the State than in rural communities. Whatever may have been the fact in the past, we are entirely satisfied that no such condition exists as a rule to-day. As far back, however, as 1873, the State Assessors of that year, in their report said:

“Until we entered upon this investigation we were of the opinion that the valuation of real estate in the country was very much less than it ought to be when compared with the valuation of cities, but the testimony of supervisors and assessors representing both city and country, confirmed by the opinions of a large number of intelligent gentlemen in different districts, compel us to change our views, and we are forced to the conclusion that the real estate of the country, with here and there an exception, bears its full proportion of the tax imposed for State purposes. * * * If residents of cities who think themselves oppressed by the country in this matter of taxation will go over the State and take full notes of life and labor there, they will doubtless change their opinions."

If this was true in 1873, it is much more emphatically so now, as in many rural counties of the State there has been depreciation in the value of agricultural lands, since that date, of 50 per cent., while in most of the cities the value of real estate has steadily increased.

We desire further to call attention to the inequality and injustice which result from the present provisions of law exempting deposits in savings banks from taxation. In enumerating the various classes of exemption, the wording of the statute as regards savings banks is as follows:

"The deposits in any bank for savings which are due depositors, the accumulations in any domestic life insurance corporation held for the exclusive benefit of the insured, other than real estate and stocks, now liable for taxation; and the accumulations of any incorporated co-operative loan association upon the shares of such association held by any person."

The literal reading of this clause would certainly seem to exempt from taxation all deposits in savings banks either to the bank or to the depositor, and in the absence of a judicial decision, since the adoption of this provision in its present form, we have so construed it when consulted as to its scope and meaning. Our attention, however, has been called to a recently published opinion by Deputy Attorney-General Parsons, holding that the exemption applies only to banks, and does not exempt depositors from taxation on their deposits. The assessor has no means of ascertaining the names of depositors or the amount of their deposits, and a very large proportion of this class of property escapes taxation, while the tax falls with great hardship upon those whose deposits are, accidentally or otherwise, ascertained and assessed.

The interest paid on deposits by savings banks is from three to four per cent. In several of the cities of this State the tax rate is over two and a half per cent. In these instances, if deposits are assessed to the depositors, the result must necessarily be to drive out of the savings banks of this State the poorer class of depositors for whose benefit such banks were instituted.

On the other hand, large amounts of money are undoubtedly deposited in savings banks by people of comparative wealth, either because of the facility afforded for escaping taxation or because the income therefrom is as large as can be obtained elsewhere with equally satisfactory security, or for both reasons. There seems to be no good reason why the seven hundred millions of dollars on deposit in the savings banks of this State should entirely escape taxation, but it should all be taxed or all be exempt, and the law so framed that such result may be obtained with uniformity and certainty.

We believe that a small uniform tax payable by the banks upon all deposits liable thereto, directly to the Comptroller of the State, would yield a considerable revenue to the State without necessitating decreased dividends to the depositors of any single bank, although of course decreasing the accumulated surplus by the amount of the tax, and we would respectfully recommend legislation looking to the accomplishment of that purpose.

In the effort to obtain a better enforcement of the statutory requirement that all property not exempt from taxation be assessed at its full value, this Board has placed itself in communication with the local boards of assessors in all the towns of the State, calling their attention directly to the demands of the statute in that respect, and advising that any illegal attempt to evade personal taxation coming to their knowledge should be reported to the district attorney of the county in which it occurs for his investigation, and this Board has also communicated with the district attorneys of the several counties, asking their active co-operation in the effort to obtain a legal and honest assessment. In two counties, Washington and Westchester, the grand juries have taken action against local assessors. The effect of the proceedings in Washington county was an increase of 13 per cent. in the assessment of real estate and 41 per cent. in the assessment of personal property.

In Westchester county, several assessors are now under indictment. Judge Keogh, in discharging the grand jury of that county recently, spoke, in substance, as follows:

“The examination which you have made has been patient, impartial and most intelligent. In some cases the testimony has been so clear as to compel you to find indictment. The presentment which you have made is a wholesome arraignment of incapable public officials. It will be welcomed by all good citizens and will be received by the law evading citizens as a notice to them that in this county henceforth an honest effort will be made to place all citizens equally under the law. It has satisfied me and all who read it, that in almost every town of this county, with one splendid exception, millions of dollars worth of personal property have entirely escaped taxation, thereby causing a most unjust and odious burden upon the owners of real estate. I shall be here next October to hold a term of the Supreme Court, the remaining work of this year will not then be completed, and I will see to it that every assessor in this county is again summoned before that grand jury to convince them, that the patriotic work which you have begun will be honestly and courageously prosecuted to its end."

Copies of these remarks of Judge Keogh and of extracts from the presentment by the grand jury of Westchester county have been sent by this Board to every board of local assessors in the State.
